Haunting and seductive, a tale of courage and overwhelming love. One night can change everything. And now, Helena Glass is raising her child in Paris, far away from her judgmental family. Concealing his identity, her young daughter's need to know her absent father, both his name and his love, breaks Helena's heart. Helena's dear friend, Selene Bishop, has since joined her in Paris, sharing Helena's passion for books, as well as her bed. Yet when Helena travels to South Carolina, without Selene, to attend her brother's wedding, she comes face to face with everything that she has left behind, including her child's father. On returning to France, Helena finds Selene in a fragile state of mind. She wants to comfort her lover, yet cannot find the courage to do so before Selene leaves for good. The vacancy is filled, briefly, by Jordan McAllister, Helena's teenage crush. The affair is short lived, as Helena's universe spins more and more out of control. Yet Helena discovers how love can bind a mother and child through even the most harrowing of circumstance.
